

MEDIA RELEASE

November 17, 2004

SAN DIEGO - The National Community Education Association installed a Kentuckian as its president at the association's 39th annual conference. Louise Summers of Mt. Sterling, Ky. assumed the position after serving a year as president elect. Mrs. Summers is director of Community Education for Montgomery County Public Schools and has served in numerous capacities at both the state and national level.

She is a former president of the Kentucky Community Education Association, a former regional director for NCEA, a national presenter for the National Center of Community Education, and much more.

Mrs. Summers will serve as president of NCEA until December of 2005.

*Kentucky Community Education Association
P.O. Box 1320, Bowling Green, KY 42102-1320
270-842-4281*